

Paintfest 2011

MIGNON PARKER'S workshop sure brought out the imagination in all of us. Flowers in a bucket, spotted teapot and cup and saucer and a piece of pumpkin. Jill wanted some pumpkin for the drawing class but there was none to spare. The creative results from the artists were varied and just great. George, being a male, of course called a bucket a bucket and painted it as such. Ukiko thought a bumble bee effect was unique. For some the red and white tea service changed to black and white.

Two coloured backgrounds was the idea for some one else. Debra already had a frame in mind at home in which to frame it. Teresa brought a square canvas and left her background black - and why not? It was all just great and fun.....

RICHARD PORTER'S drawing group unanimously agreed they had got so much out of the experience that they would certainly be back for more!!!!
